January 28, 1882. 5 To the Editors of the Dispatch: 1. Where can country people send to get vaccine virus? Is there an agency in Richmond that furnishes it; and if so, would you advise us to get it from there—i. e., is it safe? and (2) is it free? or at what price? By replying in the dally you will oblice.

By replying in the daily you will oblige,
J. Yours, &c., 1. To Dr. G. W. Harris, State Vaccine

Agent, 213 Franklin street. 2. Dr. Harris furnishes it gratis.

3. See the advertising columns of the Daily Dispatch. There you will find the names of druggists who sell the virus, and what sort they sell.

We know these druggists personally, and also Dr. Harris. We should put the most implicit confidence in the representations of either one of them.

4. Of course we think it "safe." The small-pox has by vaccination been rendered comparatively harmless in Richmond. There were no new cases reported on Thursday, Friday, or Saturday last; and there is now little or no apprehension felt bere on the subject.

But this prediction is well known to at least two influential men in this city—one of them holding a position of honor and frust in the municipal government, the other an efficer of the Federal Government.

In a quiet street along the lake-side, in this city, resides a remarkable man—one about whom there is an air of mystery which so far has baffled official scrutiny. He impresses one with his learning, his intimate acquaintanceship with affairs of State in foreign countries, and his knowledge of politics, men, and measures of this nation. The bare assertion, unsupported by the incidents I am about to relate, that this interesting man foretold the assassination of President Garfield weeks—aye, months—before the act was done, would make no impression on the reader; for "cranks" predictions are as thick as blackberries.
